Chemotherapy for secondary liver cancer

Treatment you have depends on where the tumor started and how it feels. The specialist will discuss the treatment aims with you.a for some types of havea cancer widespread to the liver, can still be able to treat your cancer. For other types of cancer, the goal can be to control cancer and symptoms. This is called palliative treatment. Decide on the treatment of deciding about the treatment can be difficult. You need to understand: which treatment can do for the side effects YOUNAY of the Treatmenthow numerous visits to the hospital The treatment includes can be stopped every time you want, if you are finding too much to deal with. Speak through options with the doctor or specialized nurse. You can find useful talk about things with a narrow relative or a friend, or a consultant, if available. Treatment will depend on a series of factors, including: the type of primary cancerthe treatment you have already hadhow many tumors are in liverwhether your tumor has spread to other parts of the symptoms Bodyyour Healthyour general types of surgery is not suitable for everyone and it depends on: where your cancer started, is a common treatment for cancer intestine that has spreadwhether you have only secondary cancer in the liver if the tumor has spread to other parts of the body, surgery is not usually SuitableHow Many secondary tumors are in the liver and how big you are arewhether the primary tumor is under control removal part of the liver (hepatic resection) isa greater surgery and can take several hours. You have surgery at a specialist center. After the operation, usually stay in intensive care or a strong addiction unit. This is for at least 24 hours. Most people need to be in the hospital for about a week. It usually takes about 6 weeks to start feeling normal again. You could have chemotherapy or a drug tumor targeted before or after the operation. Before surgery, it is sometimes possible to encourage the healthy part of the liver to grow. This helps to make there be enough liver on the left later and can be reduced, the risk of hepatic insufficiency. They do it blocking a branch of the main vein that leads to the liver (the door vein). This is called embolization of the Vena Porta (PVE). This usually happens several weeks before hepatic resection. Sometimes remove the liver in two phases. First, you have an operation to remove part of the liver, then a week after you have another removed part. This is called a hepatic resection set up. Chemotherapy Chemotherapy uses anti-cancer drugs to kill cancer cells. The type of chemotherapy increases the frequentation depends on the type of cancer.â, primary if the first type of chemotherapy is required (first treatment line) does not control your cancer, you might be able to have a different kind of chemotherapy (Second line treatment). Hepatic artery infusion (Hai) This treatment gives chemotherapy directly into the artery going into the liver (hepatic artery) .â, it is known as infusion of hepatic artery (you have). You have a small tube (catheter) put in the main artery that leads to the liver. You have a high concentration of the chemotherapy drug to get to a tumor.â, you usually have to stay in the hospital during the night or longer for this treatment. This treatment is not suitable for everyone with secondary liver cancer.â, transarterious chemiembliision (silhouetted) chemiembliing involves giving a chemotherapy drug in an artery along with an oily liquid or a resorbable jelly sponge. He puts a thin tube doctor called a catheter in a great artery of the leg or arm. They The catheter in the main artery that brings blood to the liver. They then inject the mixture of chemotherapy and olive liquid or foam through the catheter. The oil cuts or foam off most of the bloodstream to the liver, which interrupts the supply of oxygen and nutritious to cancer. This damages tumor cells. The mixture of chemotherapy also remains in the area of the della For some time, so tumor cells get a high dose of treatment. You may need to stay in the hospital during the night or longer for this treatment. Hormone therapy Some tumors including breast cancer and prostate depend on hormones to survive and grow. So lowering hormone levels in the body can help control them. You may have hormonal treatment like tablet or injection. Targeted cancer drugs have targeted cancer drugs are treatments that direct the differences that help a tumor cell to survive and grow. The doctor can suggest a targeted cancer treatment, if it is suitable for your primary cancer. There are different types of targeted cancer drugs including: monoclonal antibodies (MABS) cancer growth blocks PARP Inhibitors Drugs that block blood vessel growth (Angiogenic anti ç) Radiation therapy radiotherapy treatment uses high energy X-rays To kill tumor cells. Radiation therapy can help control growth and symptoms of cancer. You usually have it as external radiotherapy. It is here that the therapy radiographer uses a body outside the body to direct cancer radiation to destroy it. The livers are very sensitive to radiotherapy, so it is not a common treatment for liver cancer. But you may have radiotherapy to help control pain. Selective internal radiation therapy (Sirt) This is a type of internal radiotherapy (brachytherapy). It also called radiumoembolization.â, .â »You have a thin tube called catheter put into the liver artery that provides blood to the liver. The doctor sends small beads called microspheres along the catheter. These block themselves in small blood vessels around cancer. The microspheres contain a radioactive substance that gives a dose of cancer radiation. The radiation of the microspheres damages the blood supply of tumor. This means that cancer can't get the necessary nutrients. Radiation also damages cancer cells. The range of radiation from beads is very small. So very little damage to the surrounding healthy tissue. Most radiations from the microspheres has passed within 2 weeks. The microspheres remain in a permanent liver but are harmless. Selective internal radiation therapy (Sirt) Other types of treatment Your doctor can suggest another treatment, if you have not already had the standard treatments. These treatments include: ablation of radiofrequency - using radio waves to destroy the cancer cell-assisted surgery - using radio waves during an operation to kill cancer cells and then remove cancer cells .â ç .â, - freezing the Cellsmicrowave ablation of cancer - Using microwaves to destroy cancer therapy - use of a laser to destroy the injection of cancer cellsalcohol - injecting alcohol in cancer to destroy the cells controlling symptoms Secondary liver cancer can cause symptoms . All the above treatments can help control these symptoms by narrowing or removing liver cancers. But if the symptoms are still annoying, there are other ways to check them. The following are the most common ones that people have with the Secondary liver cancer. Not everyone has them and can be myths. There are many different treatments for the disease. Inform The doctor or nurse if treatment is not checking it, as they can try something else. The best treatment will depend on what is causing the disease. It can help eat small frequent meals rather than a great meal. Don't worry about what you eat. If you want to eat something in particular, do it. Have drinks to high energy supplements I don't feel like eating. Sometimes cancer can cause belly swelling (abdomen) due to an accumulation of liquid called ascites. The fluid can accumulate when: cancer has spread to the liver and raises the pressure in the vicin blood vessels, which forces the fluid out of the liver cannot make enough protein .â ç
