Outdoor Alliance, LLC will work with you and for you, as well as your insurance company, to repair or replace your roof as necessary for hail damage. A hail damage threshold indicates hail size that can cause functional hail damage to a particular type of cover. Since several factors play a role in the cause of damage, a hail damage threshold is not a guarantee that the hail of a certain size has made or has not damaged a particular roof mount. The thresholds are only rules of thumb that the ball park the opportunity for damage to occur. June 2015: Lack of Bond sealant at composition angles - Is it wind damage? Your roof can be perfectly fine, but have underlying damage that can prematurely age your roof. Muth & Company provides coverage and repair installation services for residential, commercial and non-profit organizations. How are the hail damage thresholds determined? In Haag, tests for threshold damage follow specific parameters. Covering materials are impacted; By freezer ice balls simulating "hard" hail stones (in sizes ranging from 1/2" to 3") At perpendicular angles At projectile speeds calculated to replicate free fall speeds of the same sizes, the Haag thresholds are the result of 52 years of impacting studies in the laboratory, as well as correlations of such researches with thousands of Haag field inspections. The table below lists established Haag thresholds for common roofing materials. It is always important to have a professional inspect your roof after a hail storm, as destruction may not be easily apparent. Our team will look for missing shrapnel, highlighted equipment, water intrusion signals, and more, and we will provide an honest assessment of whether your roof needs to be repaired or replaced. Consider this example for when hail damage thresholds can be particularly useful. We have a complete understanding of the insurance claims process, and we will work with your companysafe efficiently and seamlessly to bring your property back to normal. We pride ourselves on our classification with the better business bureau and we are offering reliable, fast, and fair service to our customers.
