A Printable Worksheet for Parts of Speech I was teaching my students about parts of speech last year, and made this useful worksheet. It begins with a matching exercises, which I think works well for guided discovery. Then I have a labeling exercises for a paragraph from the novel, The Rum Diary, by Hunter S. Thompson. (It's one of my favorite books.) Here's the worksheet, and the answers are below: A PPT Explaining Parts of Speech I have also created a PPT for explaining the different parts of speech, with examples and a simple guide to building sentences. Parts of Speech Overview from David Wills Here are some other activities you can use. Instructions are included in the documents. Lesson Plan In teaching parts of speech, I use the above documents. I would tend to begin with the guided discovery matching exercise, and then follow up by explaining (if necessary) parts of speech using the PPT. Next, I would have students do the labeling exercise, then practice changing parts of speech using the table. If they need it, you can have them change sentences, keeping parts of speech the same but using a new word. Finally, give them the writing task. This can work nicely as homework.
