Effective May 21, 2018 you can use Check-A-Ticket in the Mobile App to scan all Scratchers and Draw game tickets to see if you are a winner. The scanning feature is also available for 2nd Chance submissions. First, make sure you are scanning the unique barcode on the FRONT of the ticket. There are other reasons why the unique Check-A-Ticket and 2nd Chance barcode may not be scanning. These may include: * Light reflecting off the ticket. * A smudged or badly printed barcode. * Torn or damaged ticket. * Over-scratched ticket. * Dirty camera lens. * Older camera with low resolution. * The 2nd Chance code was previously scanned and confirmed. You can watch the How to Scan for 2nd Chance Android video here or the How to Scan for 2nd Chance iOS video here. Tap on "Enter 2nd Chance" in the menu and hold your device so that you can see your ticket on the screen. Then keep your camera over the barcode. The scanner will automatically recognize if it is an eligible 2nd Chance barcode and confirm your entry. Not all Draw games are eligible for 2nd Chance. Currently any SuperLotto Plus ticket, and Fantasy 5 tickets over $5, have codes that can be entered into 2nd Chance. On Scratchers® tickets, the unique barcode is located in different locations on the FRONT of each ticket. On all Draw games the barcode is on the front of the ticket, see examples below: On Scratchers® tickets, the unique barcode is located in different locations on the FRONT of each ticket. See image below: On SuperLotto Plus® tickets, the unique barcode is directly below the 2nd Chance Code printed on the ticket. See image below: For Check-A-Ticket, a pop-up message will tell you if your ticket is a winner or not. If it is a winner, the message will include the amount of your prize. For 2nd Chance scans, you'll get a "success" message. You can also go to "My Submissions" to see a record of your successful 2nd Chance submissions. If the submission record is there, you can be assured that it is in the system. You can manually enter the 2nd Chance code into your account with the app. Just sign into your 2nd Chance account and click on the "Enter Manually" button at the top of the scanning window. If your Check-A-Ticket or 2nd Chance code scan is not successful, you will get an appropriate error message. Please set filter criteria and enter your ticket information above to see results. 1 Pick a price point. Scratch-off lotto tickets are sold with varying odds, styles, and designs, but the easiest way to compare them is by price. Typically, scratch-off tickets cost between $1 and $20 a piece, depending on the game and the area in which you live. The cheaper tickets have a low percentage of overall winners, lower payouts, and a smaller spread between the top prize and interval prizes. More expensive tickets $5 and up, yield a higher overall percentage of winners, with a more even spread of higher-payouts, and usually a higher jackpot. In other words, a dollar ticket may win more often, but the top prize may be a few hundred dollars, and the average prize will be much lower, while any given $20 ticket will win less often, but there is a very low probability that you could win $500,000 or more. 2 Understand the odds of the game in your price point. The odds listed for any particular game are the odds that any given ticket will be a winner. Just because some games present higher odds of winning than others doesn't mean you're more likely to win the jackpot, but it does make it a more valuable ticket for the price, given a large spread of lesser prizes. Buy tickets at your price point with the highest odds of any winner. For a serious lottery player who wants to buy in bulk, the lower-price cards with higher odds is usually a better choice, while the occasional lottery player might do better to buy a more expensive ticket every now and then.[1] 3 Study the small print on the back of the scratch card to find the odds of winning. Compare the odds of a few games before making an educated guess as to which card to buy. Typically, the odds are listed as a comparison of numbers: 1: 5, or 1: 20. This means that 1 out of every 5 or 20 tickets will be a winner. It doesn't mean that every fifth ticket in a row wins, and it doesn't mean that in a random sampling of 20 tickets, one will definitely be a winner. It means that in the total number of tickets allotted, in all the stores across the state, that percentage of tickets are winners. 4 Buy in bulk or else stagger your ticket buying. There are rarely two winning tickets in a row, but there are at least a few winners in every roll of tickets. Therefore, if you know that a winning card has already been purchased from a given pack, stop playing for a couple days and come back, go to a different store, or buy a different game. This will ensure that you don't spend money on an almost guaranteed loser. Scratch-off tickets are sold with a guaranteed number of winners and losers in each pack, which is usually about 30 or 40 tickets. One way to guarantee that you'll win is to buy an entire pack[2] Now, you might end up not making a profit, but you'll end up winning something. 5 Hang out and wait for losers. Like slot machines and other games of chance, long streaks of losses mean that the odds get much more friendly when you swoop in with a well-timed purchase. Try talking to the cashier at a particular lotto shop to get good tips on which games have paid out and which haven't lately. You won't necessarily be able to know whether or not a particular ticket has a better chance than another, but you can know whether or not a game's already played out. If someone in front of you just bought ten tickets and lost on them all, buy a few. It's not a guarantee of a winner, but there's a better chance the next ticket in the roll will win if the previous ten didn't.[3] 6 Check to see prize levels before you buy a game. Unfortunately, it's perfectly legal to sell tickets for a scratch off game after all of the top prizes have already been claimed. Sometimes the store will post a flyer with that information, but it is sometimes several weeks out of date. Checking with the state lottery homepage is the simplest way to make sure you aren't wasting money on a loser. If you have a favorite game at your price point and are considering buying some tickets, check out the top prize first before you head to the store. If it's lower than usual, because the top prizes have been claimed, think about switching to a different game in the same price point.
