By Suvro Banerji Adobe documents, also known as PDF files, are commonly used for text documents, charts and graphics. However, not all computer users have Adobe Reader, which is required to open PDF files. To assure compatibility with other users when sharing a document, it can be helpful to convert a PDF file to a Word document. This process also is beneficial when a user needs to edit a PDF file without purchasing a PDF editing program like Adobe Acrobat. The "PDF-to-Word" online conversion tool is a free utility that lets a user upload any PDF file from a computer's local hard disk and convert it to a Word document file. It then sends the converted document to the provided email address. One of the benefits of this tool is that it is designed to convert and accurately re-position all the contents of the document upon conversion. In other words, the format remains the same. Log on to PDF-to-Word website (see References below for the link). Click on "Choose File" under Step 1. Browse to locate the PDF to be converted to a Word document. Click on the file and hit "Open." Click to select ".DOC" under Step 2. Type your email address under Step 3. Click on the "Convert" button. Navigate to the email account provided. Look for an email from PDF-to-Word in the inbox. If you do not see it, check your "Spam" or "Junk" folder. Open the email. The Word document is included as an attachment. Click on it and select "Save" to download the file to a secured location on the computer's hard drive. "Convert PDF to Word" is an online tool similar to "PDF-to-Word." It also is free and lets a user convert any PDF file to a Word document. One of the benefits of this online tool is that it downloads the converted document directly on your computer instead of sending it to an email address. Navigate to the "Convert PDF to Word" website (see References below for the link). Click on "Choose File." Browse to locate the PDF to be converted to a Word document. Click on the file and hit "Open." Click on the button "Convert and Download." Click on "Save" when the download dialog box appears. Select a secured location on your computer, type a name for the Word document and click on "Save." "PDFOnline" is another free conversion utility tool. Like "Convert PDF to Word," this program does not require an email address. The Word document will be ready immediately after the conversion is finished. Navigate to the PDFOnline website (see References below for the link). Click on "Choose File." Browse to locate the PDF to be converted to a Word document. Click on the file and hit "Open." Click on "Upload and Convert." The utility will then convert the PDF file. Right-click on the link "Right-click here to download the Word file." Select "Save." Choose a secured location on the computer's hard drive and click "Save" to download the Word file. If you have any video s on your Mac that are particularly large in file size, then putting them on your iPad or iPhone can easily devour tons of space. You can convert videos on your Mac, however, using no additional software. If you've been around computers for any length of time, then you're likely familiar with Apple's QuickTime software. QuickTime has existed since the early 90s and still exists as OS X's default video playing software. QuickTime can play quite a few file formats, but it can't play everything. For example, it can't play the increasingly popular MKV format, which is why many people have turned to VLC as an alternative. But for the file formats it does play, it can also convert them to the perfect size for your iPhone and iPad. How to Convert Videos with QuickTime's "Export" Function To begin, you open the file you wish to convert in QuickTime. Next, click on the "File" menu and then mouse down to the "Export" menu. From the Export menu, you will see six options: you can save your video in 480p, 720p, and 1080p, just save the audio track, or save the video to iTunes, which can then be cast to any Airplay compatible device like an Apple TV. However, if you have an iPhone, iPad, or Apple TV, you can choose the "iPad, iPhone, iPod touch, & Apple TV..." option to convert it to the perfect size for those devices. That's what we're going to do today. On the next screen, you will see three options, of which (at least in this example) only two are available. We want to choose the second option "iPad, iPhone 4 & Apple TV." Once you've selected your size option, click the "Save" button in the bottom-right corner. You will also want to choose where to save your new video. Click the "Save" button again and the export will begin, you can keep track of its progress in the "Export Progress" window. If you want to stop the process at any time, click the round "X" button to the right of the progress indicator. If you want to convert more than one video, you can queue them up and they'll be converted as each preceding one is completed. That way you can set the whole process aside and do other things while your videos are being converted in the background. If Quicktime can't open the file you want to convert, you can also try using Handbrake, which is free and will open virtually any file you can throw at it. If you're interested, you can also learn more about many of the cool tricks QuickTime can do. convert arabic pdf to word free software
