How to get hickies off

By Anna Steve
A hickey is simply a bruise that appears, most of the time, when someone sucks or kisses the skin somewhat aggressively. That's why some people also call them love bites, love marks, or suck bites. When you get one, your friends and your family usually start asking questions about the blue, purple or dark red sign. A hickey is a simple bruise, and like any other bruise, you have to give him time to heal. If you don't do anything, he'll be gone alone in five to 12 days. But there are several things you can do to get him out faster. Instant corrections:Makeup:PrimerConcealerGreen CorrectorPurple CorrectorFoundation Translucent Powder Unsplash: Amy ShamblenBandaid: It's pretty simple. Accidents can happen and a bandage can be a quick and easy solution to hide that sign of love! Cover with a scarf or a high-collar shirt: This is easier to do if time is cold enough. Unsplash: Lee LuisCover with hair: This is perfect if you have long hair. Night tricks Brush: This is probably the best method to get rid of a hickey. You need to massage the hickey area with a soft toothbrush. It might be a little painful, but it works fine. When you start massaging, the accumulated blood begins to circulate, and increases the blood flow. Hike will eventually disappear. Pexels: Cristina De Luis You'll need a soft toothbrush. Brush the area for 2 to 3 minutes. Try to push out of the brand center. Wait from 5 to 10 minutes and apply a cold tablet for 5 to 7 minutes extra. Repeat what is necessary and if you think it is too painful, immediately stop the treatment to avoid tearing the skin and really hurt yourself! Cocoa butter: Cocoa butter helps to hydrate the skin, so that it will help to accelerate the healing process. Soak a clean towel in hot water, then apply it to the hickey area. Take a small piece of raw cocoa butter and gently massage on the affected area for 5-10 minutes. Repeat the process from 4 to 5 times a day. This will also help to stimulate circulation on the area. If you cannot find cocoa butter, you can replace it with lotion, oil or cream made with cocoa butter. Pexels: Monstera Tonno Oil: Yes, you read it well. Tuna oil is one of the best ways to get rid of hickeyes. It is rich in omega-3 fatty acids, which are great to help the skin heal. Immerse your fingertips in tuna oil and gently massage on the affected area. Leave it there for 5 to 7 minutes and wash it with fresh water. Repeat 3 to 4 times a day and voilà! You might know what Hickey is, but maybe you're here to find out what causes it, how to get rid of a quick hickey, and many more. You've come to the right place for your requests. A hickey (Hicke) is a bruise caused by biting, kissing or sucking aggressively on soft skin. It is mainly found around the neck or arm. Hickey is also referred to as a love bite or a kiss mark. The bruises, the hickeys broke the blood vessels just below the surface of the skin, which makes the blood. The blood collection under the skin changes color as it dries due to lack of oxygen. I am personally interested in this topic because the hickeys are like showing those intimate moments with your partner. I mean, it's like telling your co-workers, it's a " ". I had a make-out with her husband last night. While they are generally painful, hickeys could be embarrassing. So, I'll show you how to get rid of a quick hickey to keep your private your private life. How to last the hickeys? SourceHickeys last for about a week or 2. In addition, the duration of your healing will be determined by your size. The size of a hickey will be determined by the level of damage done to the capillaries under that part of the skin. Just like any bruise that can happen and heal, Hickeys naturally heals themselves. So, when you want to worry about how and when it will heal, compare it to the normal bruises you had at some points in your life and healed on your own. The hickeys do not leave any permanent marks or dangerous on you, nor is it dangerous to your health in any way. The hickeys could be on the neck, arm, breast, chest, chest, etc. Facts that determine how hard a hickey will last and how the hickeys get away depends on several factors that will be discussed below. How quickly they also form depends on a few factors. So, don't be worried when a hickey on the chest stays longer than the one on the face. Read on to learn more.Location of the Lovebite is widely believed that hickeys are given on areas often exposed to the sun that last much longer than others. This is fake. The exposed areas are the ones that heal the fastest since they get the sun, and other exposures useful with healing. In addition, the thickness and hardness of the area The hockey lies in determining how long it will last. Thick areas will be difficult to Hickey. So they fade quickly. Hickey Condition (treatment vs. No treatment) It is not possible to compare a hickey treated with an untreated one. When treated, the bite of love is encouraged to heal quickly. The method of treatment is also a determining factor of how quickly it will go. An untreated will need time to heal naturallyIt is certainly slower than the treaty. There are several ways in which you can get rid of hickeys. It is worth noting that people with deteriorated health, such as suppressed immunity, certain types of cancer, diabetes, a blood disorder, and so on, will find their hickey taking more time to heal. Older people could find their hickey taking more time to heal than it will be with young people. Older than we have, poorer our health. The regeneration of cells becomes slow. The wound healing process takes more time. So, your hickey might stay longer. GenreThe skin of a man cannot be compared to that of a woman. A woman's skin is more sensitive and tender. Since women have more delicate skins, their hickeys are required to last longer than they will for a man. While those with harder skin will not easily get a hickey the same way, it will turn off quickly. Nature of your Skin The nature of the skin you are having will also determine how much time a hickey will heal. For fat skins, it could be harder to get a hickey. Similarly, it could heal quickly. But for dry skins, they are easy to break or break, so it will be very easy to get a hickey that will last long and will not easily heal as fat skin would be. The severity and size of the Hickey The duration of the juice and bite that led to the hickey will determine how quickly it will go. The deeper, the bigger the hockey. Just like the severity of an injury will determine how quickly it heals, it is the same with hickeys. If less serious, it will last for a few days. Individual nature While the skins of some people are fast in healing lesions, some are naturally slow to it. It could be due to some hereditary factors or diseases. Whatever the case, it determines how soon your hickey will go. How long are the Hickeys on your neck? Due to the delicate nature of the neck, it can last 2 or 3 days. However, it can last longer than that, up to 7 days. Everything depends on the factors mentioned above. How long are the Hickeys on your breasts? On the breast is an excessive skin which is highly delicate; can take 10 to 15 days or even 21 days for the hockey to go. On the chest or nipple, a hickey goes deep. Since the breast is not a part often exposed to the sun or to other light, it makes the hockey last longer. How long are the Hickeys on the chest? The breast, just like the breast, is mostly covered by clothes so not exposed. This is enough to make hickey stay longer. It also differs between men and women. A woman's chest is much more delicate than a man's chest, so a hickey could go faster on his chest than he will be on his. How long are theon your face? Since the face is continuously exposed to the sun, it is expected to place hickeys there; forehead, cheeks included, to disappear faster than other parts. Hickeys can leave within three days. Only on other occasions due to some factors will stay up to 8 days. Otherwise, it's 3 days days To heal with the treatmentPutting a hickey under treatment is just how to force him to heal. The extra cure for wounds will generally increase the healing process even if it still ends up healing naturally. However, what form of treatment you will choose will determine how soon it will go - there are various treatments for it, which will be discussed later in this article. One will always be better than another, and it will work differently for different people. Presumably, with a treatment, hickeys should be treated within 2-3 days and nothing more. However, using a remedy that does not affect will leave untreated hickey, and will remain only for as long as it is intended to remain. # I mentioned earlier, a hickey will last between a week or 2 generally when not treated. This varies depending on the area, the intensity of the hickey, how much the area is exposed and so on. So, you might find an untreated hickey that goes away within 5 days or higher. How to get rid of a Hickey1. CompressYou cold will need cubesMetallic spoons (alternative for ice cubes and towel)Process1. Place some ice cubes in your towel.2 Gently press the affected area for about 10 minutes. Cold compression puts pressure on broken blood capillaries, and consequently, bleeding is reduced.
