Presidents usually take all the efforts to keep their families out of limoair according to the office, although they are not always successful. The American press always held a fascinium with the first family: The family of a president reflects directly on his ability to lead and the moral orientation he or she must give the nation. As such, some of the first ladies helped to framed husband's character by the nation. Sarah Polk and Lucy Hayes, for example, both forbidden liquor in the White House in the middle of the century XIX. Some presidential children found themselves the subject of forage of tablet. Jenna Bush, daughter of President George W. Bush and grandoughter of President George H.W. Bush, made headlines when he was arrested for 19-year-old Alcol in 2001 [Source: Roiphe]. Others were directed simply because of their famous parents. The 13-year-old daughter of President Bill Clinton, Chelsea, was referred to as a "dog" by the Conservative Discussion Discussion Rush Limbaugh in 1993, much for the displeasure of the Public [Source: EVON]. The youngest child of Donald Trump, Barron, rarely is a public views, perhaps to avoid spotlight to Sometimes [Source: City and Paás]. When some remained content to silently support the president, the first ladies have sometimes very public and vital papers during the administration of the husband. Perhaps the first most celebrated lady, Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of President Franklin Roosevelt, helped guide the nation during depression and World War II. Relaters of his rationing in the White House showed the nation that the administration felt his pain. She was also a sincere defender of civil rights and admitted that she felt her duty to use her unique access to the president to help the nation. Ladies can also play a role in politics. Nancy Reagan helped reinforce the president's war of her husband Ronald Reagan on drugs, launching his own campaign "just say no". The overwhelming public relations blitz directed the American children and taught a whole generation on drug use pitfalls. President Bill Clinton Hillary took the involvement of the first lady to new heights with an ambitious federal health program. Although the initiative has been defeated by a Republican Congress, the first Lady actively pushed the legislation on Capitólio, meeting the legislators to convince them to vote for the program. The first official residence of the family, the White House, is located in 1600 Pennsylvanic Ave. In Washington, DC has not been to the administration of John Adams that the residence served as a house for the president and Your family. The building was painted in white to cover the falling marks left after the British troops burned in the war of 1812. It was first opened to the public by President Thomas Jefferson after his inauguration in 1805. This tradition Open house to inauguration continued, but ran in snags after the inauguration of President Andrew Jackson in 1829, when 20,000 citizens invaded the house and had to be attracted outside with washed wash of UK and juice on the front lawn. The practice ended in 1885, when assassination attempts attempts to take questions about security [source: history]. Over the years, some of the first ladies renewed the White House during the husband's mandate. The wife of President Harry Truman, Bess, completely destroyed the residence, and the renewal lasted almost all the administration from 1945 to 1953. President John Kennedy's wife, Jacqueline, famously redecorated the White House and gave a televised tour to the nation in February 1962. Forty-five million tuned to watch [Source: Rothman]. The white house also served as scenario for various weddings. Twenty-three first children or grandchildren were married à € à € à € à € in the white house, with the daughter of President James Monroe, Mary, in 1820. The latest: 1992 Wedding of the daughter President George H. W. Bush, Dorothy.Holding A one In the White House is just a perk, the president is offered. Right answer: Ordering Reimpressions Print Article Photo: Richard Nowitz / Getty Images We are our to even put the idea out, if it ends on the Donald Trump platform, but if the US government has turned into privatizations to pay The national ditch, how much would the White House for today? Here is the classified announcement that you can run: "Historic American Residence on 18 acres. Rare opportunity to acquire a 16-room white sandstone in the center of Washington, with a look of four pillars of Parthenon. Ann Gray, Director in Los Angeles - based adequate gray counselors, figures the white house would sell for $ 90 million, but if you play in your contents, the US government could get up to $ 250 million. To get your evaluation, gray Mixed the first three month of the Industry Imobilia to analyze a property: How much would it cost to rebuild a house so imposing, the income that the White House could potentially produce, and how many comparable properties would fetch this market. Gray Then he pondered these men based on his experience and reached his $ 90 million evaluation. Let's take the costs of reconstruction. The original construction back in 1792 It costs $ 232,000, says Gray, RASTR and changes in material and work costs, and considering today's dollars, which reaches $ 100 million. She checked the figure against the cost of a similar property, as well as the standard pattern in real estate evaluations. Gray used the National Museum of the Smithsonian Institution of African American History and African-American culture as comparative property, since it is about the same size and quality, and in the same neighborhood. The last figures suggest that the reconstruction costs of Smithsonian Building are $ 1,428 per square, or $ 79 million, says it. The White House has much better bones, however, and the intangible presidential history add a progeny to the builder. This is only a reason why the White House would make a bed and breakfast. So, to do this right, you also have to take the potential white house income generator in the evaluation. Jefferson, Washington DC is a full-service luxury hotel that, gray states, is probably a good benchmark of the White House. Deluxe suites cost about $ 1,200 per night; The hotel has an 85% occupation rate. Make mathematics for the 16 rooms in the White House and the potential operating income generated leaves for about $ 5 million per year. Using a standard real estate real estate for the value of this income over time, says gray, and you end up with a price price of $ 86 million to the White House. The last step is to look for a comparative property and what you can sell. The sea-a-lake club in Palm Beach, Fla., It's owned by Trump. It is a proprietary of 17thymers to spread the white house. Both have shelters in the portion, tonile and tonile courts - one for the beach, the other to the captain. In fact, sea-to-lake used to be considered the Southern White House and was frequently visited by presidents and dignitaries in the retreat. Trump bought sea-a-lake for $ 10 million in 1985. Today, its estimated value is almost $ 100 million, gray allegations, and this is comparable to the White House. Take a day of these different assessment and you get a figure marginally over $ 90 million. But what about the contents of the White House? Two Paintings of $ 5 Million Thomas Moran, a $ 5-million-plus Whistler James Abbott McNeill, and several other beautiful works of art add up to $ 115 million, says Barden Prissant, president of international art consultants, which reviewed 750 items inside the White House. Afterwards, there are the tchothches, like a central golden table of $ 250,000, a $ 100,000 Ava's clock and some sets of China are worth about $ 20,000 each. Add all together, and the contest of the white house could probably bring another $ 160 million. Million. It means that you will have to write a quarter of a billion dollars if you want to buy the White House and your content. But for this price you get some bells and unique whistles. There are, for example, antieircraft on the roof of the White House, according to Google Earth. There is really a sound point for this exercise: If you are having your property valuable, review the used multi-all three - in these colors, and see if one of these techniques do not It gives you a slightly better advantage over the other. E-mail: penta@barrons.com How to Barron on Facebook Follow Barron on Twitter Getty Images Recently, there have been a little talk about how much the White House Vale (you know, only in case you are holding a sign of " Sale "to appear in front, although we imagine that it is very improbable). Still, the numbers are fascinating: the time reports that estimates range from $ 90 million to $ 250 million. This took us thinking - while many people know a lot about celebrity houses and other famous houses in the Americans, what is unknown about the White House? To be honest: probably the following peculiar facts. Read to discover the snacks about the house of the people you never knew. Animancio - Continue reading below is designed to look like Irish. There are 147 windows. There are also 412 ports, 28 fireplaces, eight staircases and three elevators. Who knew? The kitchen staff white kitchen can serve dinner for up to 140 guests.
