This is because English is an excellent language that realizes that the ability to tell the truth from a lie 100% of the time does not exist. As a result, any credulous antion, which does not mean "always accept a lie as truth", will not understand this idea of infallibility. A few years ago, in a philosophy book, I read that the basis for knowing something was a properly justified true belief. Obviously, terms such as adequate, justified and belief are subjective. What I consider appropriate may be well below the criteria you would require. In addition, what I accept as justification, you can refuse completely. The same can be said of faith. However, the case of truth is different. You can't know something that's not true. If you believe in something that is not true, you are mistaken. You may remember the quote attributed to Mark Twain: "It's not what you don't know that gets you in trouble. In the last half of the 20th century, the concept of objective truth has been attacked, hindering the way we live as we want. By renouncing this concept, we are free to create our realities, choose our values and adapt our morals to the lifestyle we choose. It also allows us to change the meaning of terms like marriage and gender to fit our relativistic view of the world. However, trying to live this way as a society leads us to puzzles like men who identify themselves as dominant women in women's sports. Timothy Keller, in his recent devotional book entitled God's Wisdom to Navigate Life, based on Proverbs, emphasizes that wisdom is an acquired ability to make good choices characterized by discernment, discretion and self-discipline. Wisdom is acquired through learning, knowledge, experience, and deep thought Proverbs also indicate that God is the ultimate reality, so knowing Him through the study of Scripture is essential for wisdom. As Jesus said: "You shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" (John 8:32). Since truth is fundamental to knowledge, it makes sense If we want to be wise, we must seek the truth. Unfortunately, the truth is not always easy to discern and requires hard work and extra effort to find. I'm sure the fact made us sit lazy people as the postmodernist won the day. I don't think we can do this We cannot accept what we see on the front pages of a press on the agenda or hear about it on television. We need to dig deeper, go to the sources and evaluate the facts for ourselves. Our Godless society caused by postmodernist thinking is very confused and has lost its way. Answer Question Discernment is defined as "the quality of being able to grasp and understand what is obscure; an act of perceiving something; a power to see what is not apparent to the average mind." The definition also emphasizes accuracy, as in the "ability to see the truth." Spiritual discernment is the ability to tell the difference between truth and error. Wisdom is essential. Arguments and debates surround spiritual truth because it is obscure. Jesus, speaking to His disciples of the Pharisees, said, "To you it has been given to know the secrets of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it has not been given" (Matthew 13:11). Satan has "obstructed the minds of the unbelievers" (2 Corinthians 4:4), so God must shed light on the human mind to make us understand the truth.Wisdom is impossible without God. He gives discernment or takes it away (Job 12:19-21). Some have mistakenly defined spiritual discernment as a God-given awareness of bad or good spiritual presences – the ability to tell if a demon is in the room. While some people may possess this ability, it is not the biblical meaning of discernment. Spiritual discernment, finally, has to do with wisdom and the ability to distinguish truth from error. Wisdom is personified in Proverbs 1 and described as someone we can "get to know" (vv. 20-33). The Bible says that Jesus Christ is "the wisdom of God" (1 Corinthians 1:30). Therefore, wisdom, or spiritual discernment, is something that comes from knowing Jesus Christ. The way of receiving the wisdom of the world is different from the way of God. Learning from the world acquires knowledge and applies reason to knowledge to solve problems, build buildings and create philosophies. But God does not make self-knowledge available by these means. First Corinthians 1:18-31 says that the "wisdom of the wise" is frustrated by God who frees wisdom from the "foolish" and the "weak" through a relationship with Jesus Christ. Thus, "no human being can boast in His presence" (verse 29). We learn to be spiritually discerning by knowing him. It is not wrong to have knowledge or to have an education, and it is not wrong to use reason and logic to solve problems. However, spiritual discernment cannot be attained in this It must be given by the revelation of Jesus Christ to the believer, and then developed through formation in(Hebrews 5:14) and prayer (philippians 1:9). Jews 5:11-14 shows how spiritual discernment develops. The writer speaks to those who had become "optics of hearing", in the sense that they had lost the practice of spiritual discernment. the writer of the Jews tells them that anyone who lives of "latte" (almost than the "solid food" desired by the mature) is not experienced in the word of justice: However, the mature Christian was "trained with a constant practice to distinguish good from evil." In the word of God (with whom we define justice) and in the "consistent practice" (through which we acquire experience,) then, how does spiritual discernment grow? First, knowing that God is the only one who can increase wisdom, pray for it (Jacom 1:5; Philippians 1:9), then, knowing wisdom to distinguish good from evil comes from training and practice, to go to the bible to learn the truth and, meditating on the word, to strengthen the truth. When a bank hires an employee, they are trained to recognize counterfeit banknotes, you might think that the best way to recognize a counterfeit is to study the various counterfeitings, the problem is that every day new counterfeit is created, the best way to recognize a false bill is to have an intimate knowledge of the real thing. After studying authentic bank notes, bank cashiers do not let themselves be deceived when a fake comes. knowledge of the true helps them identify the false. This is what Christians must do to develop spiritual discernment. we must know the authentic so well that, when the false appears, we can recognize it. knowing and obeying the word of God, we will be "trained with a constant practice to distinguish good from evil". We will know the character and will of God. This is the heart of spiritual discernment: to distinguish the voice of the world from the voice of God, to have the feeling that "this is right" or "this is wrong". Spiritual discernment rejects temptation and allows us to "hate evil, cling to good" (Rome 12:9). back to: questions about Christian life how can I increase my spiritual discernment?
