From the past few Ben Zamora remixes it really looks like the Torontonian producer has found a good niche in flipping mainstream house tracks into harder, deeper versions of themselves – perfect for the future / bass house crowd. "No Money" is absolutely no different, despite Ben throwing in some elements we haven't really associated with his sound just yet. Judging from the lead and the buildup you would have probably expected an absolutely face-melting drop but instead Ben tones it down and creates some unique sounds to work around it showing us a much more refined hand.
