A subsidy cover letter and a subsidy cover sheet are presented with a grant proposal or an application package to government agencies, foundations and companies providing grants. Organizations often require the inclusion of one or both documents with grant requests. Both documents identify the attached information and provide basic information on the grant request, but similarities end there. Understanding the differences between the two documents can help you meet the requirements of submission of subsidies and avoid having your presentation end up in the pile of waste. A subsidy proposal or a question, whether sent in paper form or presented online, includes several standard components. Many foundations publish detailed instructions for the presentation of application packages. Instructions ensure uniform presentations that contain only the necessary information in formats that allow easy review. Cover letters and cover sheets are standard attached to a grant application. If you send documents with the content depends on the submission instructions of the subsidy. A subsidy cover letter and a subsidy cover board serve different purposes, although they may seem interchangeable. The foundations do not always require a cover letter of subsidies, but the inclusion of this document is expected. Organizations use a subsidy cover letter to introduce their mission and demonstrate alignment with the focus areas of the financing organization. The cover letter is the first page of the application package unless provide different directions. the cover letter, unlike the cover sheet, is a formal letter addressed to the foundation and signed by the executives of the applicant organization. a subsidy cover sheet is a form for the inclusion of specific information required by the financing organization. the module limits the amount of information you can enter to answer questions. the foundations that require the presentation of a cover sheet usually provide the module. For example, the chc foundation provides a cover form and notes the need for the module to accompany all grant requests. Many foundations use a common grant application cover sheet, which is a fillable module available to download in many nonprofit foundation sites and assistance. as the cover letter, the cover sheet is signed by the executive of the applicant organization. a subsidy cover letter begins with an introductory paragraph which includes a brief statement on the purpose and amount of the grant request. the cover letter continues to provide a brief history of your organization, describe the project and how it relates to your mission, and discuss the expected outcome of the project. the final paragraph provides contact information. the cover sheet usually includes information that the foundation uses for screen applications. the requested information includes the name and contact information for your organization, the employer identification number, and the purpose and amount of the grant request. some cover modulespaces for short descriptions of projects, history of the organization, or the population served. (Britney, someone?) So the craftsmanship of Hatch Show Print feels like a breath of fresh air. This 123-year operation in Nashville, Tennessee produced album covers and posters for Patsy Cline and Hank Williams, and now works for Beastie Boys, Pearl Jam and Bruce Springsteen. Manager Jim Sherraden employs the letterpress technology of the 15th century, the equipment of the 40s and the young collaborators who have turned around and printed the colors one at a time. The result radiates authenticity. "It's a very tactile poster," Sherraden says. "You can't get this look on a computer." Hatch is a historical landmark (attracts about 25,000 visitors per year) and a vibrant business. Due to its vast archives, designers borrow from the past when a new poster. when sherraden made a poster for a springsteen performance on the "Ghost of tom Joad" acoustic tour, he owed an image of a car from an 1939 ad for peco gasoline. springsteen was so satisfied by the fusion of the past and present that when he and the e street band released the live hard-rocking in new york city cd, he tried hatch to design the cover. this time, sherraden took stars from old posters and fonts of elvis presley from a venerable African-American printing company in nashville that was ousted by business. not all hatch customers are executors. posters have advertised wrestling meetings, dance contests and sausage whole (in which, apparently, "Hams and shoulders make a difference." hatch also worked with jack daniels and nike. However, sherraden holds a special reverence for musicians, all, regardless of stature, pay the same price. "I look at hatch as a stone wall in the southern countryside," she says. "We are always here for entertainers, who are on their way up or down in their careers. everyone is treated the same way.
