About the song, he wrote: "I'm twenty-four years old, yet something about this song makes me bawl like a baby. In 2002, Stuart Townend, the lyricist of the song, recorded it on his own album Lord of Every Heart[5] By 2005, it had been named by a BBC Songs of Praise survey as the ninth best-loved hymn of all time in the UK.[6] By 2006, it rose to the No. 1 position on the United Kingdom CCLI (Christian Copyright Licensing International) charts.[7] "In Christ Alone" appeared on CCLI's "Top 25 CCLI Songs" American songs list for the first time in the February 2008 report although it had appeared in the CCLI chart for Canada, Australia and New Zealand prior to that. As I understand the Bible, it was because 'God so loved the world' that He was willing 'to crush Him and cause Him to suffer.'[19] References ^ "In Christ Alone". "Presbyterians' decision to drop hymn stirs debate". The Getty/Townend song should not be confused with the similarly titled song "In Christ Alone" co-written by Don Koch and Shawn Craig, originally recorded by Michael English on his self-titled debut solo album Michael English, and many others. Baker later said about the song: "It holds a lot of memories for me—being young in church, and the lyrics hold a lot of meaning when you analyze them."[13] Theological debate The second verse of the hymn contains the line, "Till on that cross as Jesus died, the wrath of God was satisfied," which adheres to the satisfaction theory of atonement. Last night I probably spent more time actually crying at the piano than I did recording it. In 2013, a 15-member committee of the Presbyterian Church (USA) voted to exclude the song from a new church hymnal after Townend and Getty refused permission to alter the controversial line to "the love of God was magnified." [14][15][16] Members of the committee to compile the hymnal had discovered the alternate lyrics in a Baptist hymnal from 2010, causing them to assume that the change had been authorized by the copyright holders.[14] Critics of the committee's decision pointed out that the hymnal included other hymns endorsing satisfaction theory and the penal substitution model of atonement, including "O Sacred Head Now Wounded." [14] According to committee chair Mary Louise Bringle, the decision to exclude "In Christ Alone" centered not on the word "wrath" but rather on "satisfied." [14] The committee's decision to exclude the song triggered a larger debate across denominations and within the Presbyterian Church USA itself. ^ "Songfacts: In Christ Alone by Newsboys". At the end of the day, the cross itself is the stumbling block, and that is why the PCUSA cannot abide by this hymn. [18] Meanwhile, Bob Terry of The Alabama Baptistist wrote that he agreed with satisfaction theory, but "if the meaning of 'wrath' is that God is vindictive and took joy in punishing His Son then that is not how I find God described in the Bible. Retrieved 8 March 2012. "In Christ Alone". ^ "CCLI Top 25 Songs". CCLI. "No Swishy Love". The song, with a strong Irish melody, is the first hymn they penned together.[1][2] The music was by Getty and the original lyrics by Townend. ^ Smetana, Bob (5 August 2013). Stuarttownend.co.uk. "In Christ Alone" is considered a Christian credal song for belief in Jesus Christ. The cross is not an instrument of God's wrath. [14] Timothy George, the dean of Beeson Divinity School, criticized the decision in an online column titled "No Squishy Love" and claimed that it "fits into a wider pattern of downplaying parts of Christian doctrine that are offensive." [17] Boyce College professor Denny Burk took a view similar to George, stating that "When wrath goes, so does the central meaning of the atonement of God: penal substitution. ^ Young, Adam (25 October 2010). 26 October 2015.
